ERADICATOR

DR LESAGE'S SPECEFIQUE FOR SECRETES MALADIES, or 'Gonorrhea Eradicator.' The above remedy for the most distressing disease incident to the human race, originated from the enlightened mind of the eminent Le Sage, the promulgation and success of which throughout the kingdoms of France and Italy, has, of late years, added such high honors to the already highly honored name of the inventor. This composition unites safety with efficacy. And the venereal disease, whether in the form of 'Gonorrhea' or 'Gleet,' is eradicated by the use of it, with certainty and success, and the sufferer is restored to his usual health, without delay, or inconvenience. Tens of thousands of 'Parisians' will accede to the truth of these remarks, and it is confidently offered to those afflicted, as the best and surest remedy for the above mentioned loathsome disorder.—The secret has hitherto been confined to France and Italy.—It is now for the first time introduced by way of 'New Orleans' to the American public, and is sold, in this city, only at No. 48 Ann street, opposite Merchants' Row, near the Market, by E. THAYER, Jr., Druggist.

It is particularly recommended to sea-faring men as containing no portion of Mercury, whereby so many have been disabled from service on board ship.

The 'Eradicator' is found to give immediate relief to those afflicted with 'strictures,' 'whites,' and 'diseases of the prostrate gland.

BEHOLD!

I bring you Health, Comfort and Happiness.

THE eminent virtues of the celebrated Switzerland Compound Vegetable Powder, has rendered it a capital remedy against the different diseases which afflict humanity. Its energetic power cannot be contested, for it has relieved so many persons in the city who were laboring under the most dreadful sickness, that it has become an unprecedently popular medicine.

Dr Bonaud, a native of France, inventor of the above medicine, offers it to the public as a pure produce of vegetables, without any addition of mercury or metalic substance whatever. He invites persons with diseases, recent or chronic, to call at his office, Barrister's Hall, School street, and witness the numerous certificates obtained from individuals cured in this city.

Dr B. may be consulted every day, gratis, at his office, Barrister's Hall, between 9 o'clock, A M. and 4 P. M.

ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL.

THE high repute and extensive sale of Rowland's Macassar Oil, throughout the world, has induced speculators to imitate the label, even to forgery, and impose on the public base imitations, instead of the original.

Also, adventurers, to gain a trifle more profit, have introduced into the United States counterfeit imitations, composed of deleterious ingredients, injurious to the hair, to the serious injury of the proprietors and the public.

To prevent such imposition, A. Rowland & Son respectfully solicit particular attention on purchasing the original Macassor Oil; each bottle is enclosed with a treatise on the hair, in an envelope, tastefully executed, with the names of his agents on each pamphlet.

The signature and address is red, on a pattern of lace work, similar to a banker's cheque.

"A. Rowland & Son, 20 Hatton Garden,"—countersigned "Alex. Rowland."

Also, each bottle has the name and address of the Agent on the label—Mr J. A. DICKSON, Music Saloon, Cornhill, formerly Market street, Boston.

☞ Particular attention to this caution is necessary, as the proprietors cannot be responsible for the serious injury resulting from the use of base imitations.

For sale, by appointment of A. Rowland & Son, by their Agent, at 34 and 36 Cornhill, (late Market street,) wholesale or retail. M&Tis3w—ostf my31

POETRY.

☞ We have taken a second glance at Mr Bacon's Poems—there is much sameness in them, and much cleverness. "Fanny Willoughby," which we believe has been published before, is the most easy and playful piece in the book—"Pen and Ink" is in a like vein—but most of the pages are covered with moody reflections, and turgid homilies upon the vanities of life. The poet should have caught from the scenes described by our author, an inspiration of a livelier nature, and smiled in the fulness of a joyous heart at the sight of Heaven's rich gifts. "The Influence of Nature on the Individual Mind," evinces more power of intellect, and felicity and strength of expression than any other production in the volume—here is an extract—

"It is not freedom
To tread on prostrate nations, and o'erwhelm
And desecrate their altars; 'tis not freedom
To send the Doric column to the skies,
Pile towers on towers, and build up mausoleums
To human vanity; it is not freedom
To make the marble speak, the canvas glow,
The heart leap into eloquence, or trip
To the light numbers of the poet's reed;
This is not freedom! But it is, when mind,
'Struck from the burning essence of its God,'
Lives for high action, aims, and purposes,
Comporting with and dignified by truth!
This is true freedom, which, when overlooked
By the strong errors of perverted nature,
At once strips mind of mind's prerogatives,
Cripples its splendid powers, and makes the man,
That vilest thing on earth—a shackled slave!
—Europe was such a slave a thousand years,
And hugg'd the dust. The light that burst so pure
In heathen Socrates, went up to Heaven
At his translation, and the human mind
(Part freed, and now flung back upon itself,)
Like an erratic star, then shot away
Wild from its orbit, and went flaming on
To wander in solitude, and 'blackness
Of darkness' ever and ever! Here behold
A picture of philosophy—or rather
A picture of the mind when unbaptized
In the pure fountain which the Godhead oeams!
'Tis all unfit for us; we cannot drink,
But the strong mind of man will thirst again.
We need a purer element; we need
A something that shall fresh the fever'd lip,
Cool the hot brow, and stop the ringing brain,
And pour a purer flood-tide through the heart—
We need a something that doth come from Heaven.
O! 'tis the thirst of man's immortal nature,
Mated and chained here to its gods of clay!
It is the thirst which writes him glorious,
And gifted like the goldea hosts of heaven!
For in the solemn chambers of the soul,
The startling secret lives of its great powers,
And hence we weary on from day to day,
And feel a void the bad world cannot fill."

Ancient notions of the material world.—The ancient philosophers seem to have been nearly as enlightened as any of the moderns on the subject of moral philosophy; but in regard to the material world their notions are extremely amusing. With the exception of some of the Magi, who for selfish reasons kept their knowledge amongst their own body, the ancients were utterly ignorant of those facts which modern astronomers have disclosed. Some of them thought that the heavenly bodies, after performing their course in their orbit, refreshed themselves in the sea, and then returned. Homer says, that the sun plunges himself in the ocean, where he repairs during the night, the fatigue and exhaustion of the day, and then returns to the east or place of his rising, by a way, unknown to mortals. A certain writer, of the middle ages, says, that the reason why we do not see the sun during his return to his rising place, is that he goes back by night. The Syrians and the Greeks were of opinion that the earth was full a third longer than it was wide, and that the heaven that touched it and embraced it, at the horizon, was of the same proportions. This notion is said to have been the origin of the words latitude and longitude, the one expressing width and the other length. These words, however, have now quite a different signification.

Master Betty, the once famous Roscius, is now a respectable middle-aged gentleman, quite capable, as regards size and good humor, of undertaking the part of Falstaff. He is famous also for drawing the bow, (not the long-bow,) and was lately Captain of the St. George's Archers. He is reckoned one of the best marksmen in the kingdom. We believe he has a son, a youth of great promise, who will soon make his debut in the theatrical world in the same line of characters as his father. The quondam Roscius may often be seen at a well-known tavern in Long Acre, setting and keeping the table in a roar.

RETURN

THIS VALUABLE INSTRUMENT and receive your money if you are dissatisfied. THOMPSON'S NEW PATENT TRUSS, superior to all others ever yet invented. The principle has finally been discovered by which a permanent cure of the Hernia (or rupture) can be effected. Numerous certificates have been published and may be seen at the Agent's room, 297 Washington street, (being same house Dr Hewett keeps his rooms) and from gentlemen of the first respectability who have been cured by wearing them. It is not only the easiest to wear of any Truss ever invented, but it keeps the rupture (by an ingenious lock) perfectly safe, so that the patient can ride or labor just as well as though he was not afflicted with the Hernia. The success attending its use, and the constantly increasing demand for it is so great, that it may with perfect confidence be recommended, with the assurance that there is no imposition in the article. A trial of this instrument is its best recommendation, and any gentleman can have the privilege of wearing it six days on trial, at the expiration of which time, if there be dissatisfaction, the article will be taken back, and the money returned.

BOSTON MORNING POST.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1837.

ESSEX CATTLE SHOW.

Topsfield, Sept. 27th, 1837.

Mr Greene—I set out early this morning, on foot, which is my usual mode of travelling, to visit the annual Agricultural Fair of Essex co. held at this place. My object was not only to see the articles of exhibition, but likewise to observe the general aspect of the country around this vicinity. The roads over which I travelled, were wanting in a convenience, which is one of the surest tests of civilization—a side-walk. It was very evident that the workers of these roads were not democrats, for all their care seems to have been bestowed upon the highway, for the accommodation of the lazy loungers who ride, without providing for the comforts of humble foot-pads, like myself. The stones had been diligently picked up from the middle of the road and thrown carelessly on the road-side, so as completely to annihilate every appearance of a side-walk. "Is this the proper way," thought I "to treat the sovereign people, for the accommodation of horses and horse-jockeys? Is it proper that the road-makers should thus compel all persons to ride, who would prefer walking, by blocking up the side-walk with stones, which might be broken into fragments and made extremely serviceable to the highway? Would to heaven there was sufficient democratic spirit in our legislature to enact a law that there should be regular walks on each side of every public road that is built in this Commonwealth. Then might we exhibit to the traveller some evidence of civilization, though we cared nought for the comforts of the people." I saw some fine looking apples hanging over the wall, and plucked one from several of the trees—but they were nothing but crabs, and wholly uneatable. I then filled my pockets with some elegant pears, and thought I had gained a prize—but the first bite puckered up my mouth so horribly, that I could not fix my lips to ejaculate a curse upon them. I hobbled along over the rocks and crags, until I arrived at the Rev. Mr McEwing's Meeting House in Topsfield. This was the place for the Cattle Show. In the sheds, around the church, the people had constructed pews, in which the cattle were exhibited. I just glanced my eyes over them, and then inquire!—"Are these animals intended for the cattle-show, or are they some farmer's old stock sent here to be sold at auction?" I was then told that these creatures were really intended for the Cattle Show! Is it possible!" I exclaimed. I rubbed my eyes to ascertain whether I was asleep or awake, and thought only of the vision of Pharaoh. Such a meagre exhibition of cattle was a disgrace to the county of Essex! Among the rest there were about half a dozen miserable, long-faced cows and heifers, that looked as if they were fed on crab-apples, and had heard nothing but orthodox preaching, all their days.

Either the state of agriculture is at a very low ebb in Essex county, or the farmers pay but little regard to this animal Fair. The latter is probably the truth of the case; but I think it is the duty of the friends of agriculture to use some exertion and expense to increase the splendor of this valuable anniversary. There are very many highly intelligent and enterprising farmers in Essex county, as I can testify from my own personal acquaintance, in many instances—yet, on the whole, in agricultural improvement, I think this county is behind some other counties in Massachusetts. Why, for instance, should the market in Essex county be almost entirely supplied with cheese from the dairies in Worcester county—at the distance of more than sixty miles? This fact is not creditable to the farmers of Essex. It must be confessed that there are too many intellectual drones among them, who think that if they toil and sweat for sixteen hours per day, without any system, they are acting the part of wisdom! Vain man! why make thyself a miserable drudge, and a slave of fruitless toil, by reason of thy voluntary ignorance, when a knowledge of the science of agriculture, and a practice according to its principles, would quadruple the amount of thy harvests, and diminish, by one half, the amount of thy labor!

I then visited the exhibition of fruits and manufactures, which was very respectable. There were many fine specimens of domestic industry and ingenuity, from the hands of the fair sex. I saw, likewise, specimens of several of the earlier sorts of Indian corn, to which the attention of our farmers ought to be particularly directed, at this age of the world, when nature seems to be sliding us along, every year, a little nearer the North Pole. I did not stop to hear the address. Before my return I took a stroll upon one of the neighboring hills, and was struck with the cleared aspect of the country, for ten miles round. The soil about this region is very barren, with the exception of the meadowing along the banks of the little Ipswich river. In the course of my rambles I found some beautiful clusters of the blue Fringed Gentian, which made me some compensation for the absence of beautiful things at the Fair. The forests, too, have now assumed their most charming appearance, being robed in almost every variety of hue. It seems as if Nature intended to avert our thoughts from the contemplation of the general decay, by arraying the landscape in her fairest robe of beauty. The meadows are now variegated with the bright yellow blossoms of the Coreopsis, and more than twenty different species of Asters are scattered luxuriantly all over the landscape. But it is vain to attempt to describe all the beauties of autumnal scenery in America. FLACCUS

The Globe, in commenting upon the appointment of Samuel Jaudon, Esq. Cashier of the Bank of the United States, as agent of the bank to reside in London, says—

"When this intimate and immediate connection between the London bankers and the American branch of the concern is established, to take "care of the commercial and financial interests of the United States," there will be but one thing necessary to complete the power assumed. Mr Biddle must have the collection, custody, and disbursement, of our national revenues. This will put the currency and commerce of the country under his control, and the Government of the United States will be relieved from all those high, delicate, and responsible duties, which involve so deeply the prosperity of the country. Unless it be to save Mr Biddle from the invidious office of imposing taxes to support the General Government, as well as his bank government, it would seem scarcely necessary to perplex the country with elections, to provide a legislature and Executive at Washington to take care of their foreign interests. Mr Jaudon's mission will at least render that of Mr Stevenson superfluous.

We are told in Mr Biddle's communication, that "American staples, American securities, and American interests generally, were too often sacrificed from want of knowledge and want of confidence among Eu- ropeans;" but he does not tell us, in taking these great matters under his care, that he has provided any guarantee that he and his successors will faithfully, disinterestedly, and impartially exercise the control he has assumed over the great interests for the benefit of the American people, and not for the privileged few, at home and abroad, interested in making the greatest profits out of the monopoly of commercial credit which the banks seeks to establish. What security has this country that, when the bank wishes to invest its millions "in American staples" and "American securities," it will not make the money market hard, and depreciate the local currency, to make a double profit out of the currency and the commodity? what security that it will not sacrifice every class in this country except its own favored class, and for the benefit of that class?"

Correspondence of the Boston Morning Post.

Washington, Wednesday Evening, Sept. 27, 1837.

The Evening Session has been devoted exclusively to the consideration of the Deposite Bill. It has been discussed by Messrs. Wise, Merrifield and Hamer, and I hope and trust that it will pass before another hour shall have lapsed. We have been bored, and gauzed, and ripped up, and dragged out by it, and not a moment should be lost in disposing of it.

Mr Hamer, of Ohio, is now on the floor making a warm speech in favor of it; and yet, I do not see that there can be any necessity for his advocacy, as the bill will unquestionably pass by a handsome majority. It should pass; it will pass, and unless it were got up, and adopted, we should soon find the Treasury brought up to a dead halt. From the indications now before us, it does not appear probable that the bill will be acted upon before a late hour of the night. Yours, &c.

CONSIDER STANDISH.

Washington, Sept. 28, 1837.

I notice by the Post of the 25th inst. that you sympathize with Mr Hallett of the Advocate, and Mr Pearce of Rhode Island, and deprecate the attack that was made on them last Monday and Tuesday by Mr Henry A. Wise. I am not the advocate of Mr Wise, and no man could more warmly and sincerely deprecate and denounce his conduct in the last year, as developed in the committee room, than I did. I spoke of it with all the warmth of denunciation that could be elicited by an honest indignation. Whilst I was doing this, and was obliged to seek the presses that would suffer me to express myself, the editor of the Advocate, and Mr Pearce of Rhode Island, were preparing eulogies on the character of Mr Henry A. Wise. And after the committee of investigation had closed its labors, and after Mr Wise had notoriously abused Mr Pearce and the whole majority of the committee, and had in committee, and out of it, publicly pronounced the editor of the Advocate as an abandoned liar, Mr Pearce presented an eulogistic resolution on the conduct and character of Mr Wise, which was adopted! And, subsequently to this, the columns of the Advocate sung the praises and glories of Henry A. Wise! And why was all this so? It was but a peace offering, voluntarily presented to Mr Wise; and, attempt to disguise it as you may, it was the product of cowardice! The committee were afraid of Wise—he was well aware of the fact, and when he found them hypocritically offering him eulogies to appease his ire, he turned upon them and justly punished their cowardice, by holding them up to the derision of the world.

I do not say this out of any ill-will for Mr Pearce or the editor of the Advocate; but as a New England man. I utter it for the purpose of expressing my disapprobation of those of my countrymen who suffer themselves to be browbeaten and frighted out of their senses, by the hotspurs of the south.

I ask you, most respectfully, to suffer me to say thus much, not with the wish that you should make the Post echo my sentiments, but with the hope that I may represent the feelings of any Yankee now at Washington, as well as the feelings of those who were in this city, when Henry A. Wise frightened a committee into a eulogy on his official conduct. Will you oblige me?

Yours, obediently,

CONSIDER STANDISH.

Washington City, Sept. 29, 1837.

The House is now employed in discussing the Mississippi election; and although it is as plain as the nose on your face, that Messrs Claiborne and Gholson are entitled to their seats, and notwithstanding almost every man in the House is of that opinion, it is not unlikely that the question may be protracted for several days. It is made a loop to hang speeches on, and no one can tell when it will be brought to a close. It is next to certain that the gentlemen from Mississippi, will be suffered to hold their seats for the 25th Congress.

Mr Pickens's motion to re-consider the vote of last night, on the bill to suspend the operation of the Deposite or Distribution Bill, will be called up among the unfinished business of yesterday, and probably will be debated the whole day. It is probable that the motion to reconsider will prevail, and that the bill, with Mr Pickins's amendment, will be carried by a very large majority.

The bill, as it now stands, suspends the operation of the Deposite Act, till otherwise directed by law. Pickens's amendment proposes that it shall be suspended till the 1st January, 1839. There are many of the friends of the administration who are in favor of the amendment, because its adoption would gratify a portion of the South, and would not materially vary the complexion of the bill. This explanation will account to you for the largeness of the vote against the passage of the bill.

The next bill in order, after the one in question shall have been disposed of, is a bill to extend the payment of duty bonds. It will probably be passed without much difficulty. The fate of the Treasury Note Bill is yet undetermined, and opinion in relation to it is divided. It ought to pass, and I should think the chances decidedly in its favor; but no man can tell what will be done.

It is now generally conceded that both Houses will adjourn on the 9th or 16th of October, probably on the latter day, as many of both parties are disposed to sit a week beyond the day designated by the Senate.

The debate on the Mississippi election is still going on, and I regret that the Express Mail closes at so early an hour that I am obliged to ask you to wait for the slow mail for an account of the proceedings of the evening session. Yours truly,

More Trouble for the Feds.—The Gospel Banner, a religious paper, not at all connected with politics, says that the Executive Council convened in Augusta on Monday last, and published the same return votes as that we copied from the Age on Saturday, viz:—

	Parks.	Kent.	Scat'g.
	34022	34183	120
The plantations to come in 1834, gave	228	48	00
	34250	34231	120

The Senate is composed of fifteen democrats and ten federalists—in the House it is uncertain which party will predominate. The fog bell was invented quite soon enough to save the feds from going on to the rocks.

If the Advocate has not proved that Wise "lied in his throat," when he said that Mr Hallett "feigned sickness," then we are incapable of judging the force of evidence and argument.

☞ We mentioned on Saturday, that Miss Clifton played Bianca, in Mr Willis's new tragedy, for her benefit on Friday night. The theatre was filled with an intelligent and impartial audience—or, if any prejudice existed, it was against the production: under such circumstances, the applause it received may fairly be said to have been extorted by the intrinsic merits of the play, and the superior manner in which every character belonging to it was sustained. Miss Clifton's personation of Bianca was a triumphant effort of genius in the highest walk of her profession; the young, joyous, and noble-spirited girl—the devoted wife—the proud duchess, and the broken-hearted maniac, were pourtrayed by her with a fidelity that gave to each successive passion the full force of reality: the dream scene in the last act was a display of histronic power and talents we never saw surpassed, and was enough, alone, to establish her fame as one of the first actresses upon the stage. Mr Murdock, in Sforza, played with unusual ability—his conception of the character of the restless, ambitious, and determined warrior, appeared to us to meet, perfectly, the design of the author, while he represented him with all the fervour of Mars himself, and afforded a fine contrast, in his lofty bearing, to the crafty, intriguing Sarpellione, who was drawn to the life by Mr Gilbert. The rough and disaffected Brunorio was strikingly delineated by Mr Muzzy, who plays, generally, this season, much better than he did the last, and we are glad to observe that his exertions are justly appreciated by the audience; no member of the company is more capable of gaining popularity in his class of characters than Mr M., if he will but make the effort. Mr Andrews, in Pasquali, deserved the liberal marks of approbation bestowed on him—Pasquali, to our notion, is not a very good part for an actor, but Mr A. acquitted himself excellently well in it. In New York, we understand, Mr Placide represented the whimsical son of the muses as a clown—a buffoon—but Mr A., more correctly, considered him a well behaved, but a merry and eccentric, man. Miss Fisher made the best of Fiametta, but, in our opinion, it is the poorest character in the cast, and required all her peculiar tact to render it tolerable. Mr Davenport was a good Rossano—he looked and acted the hardy, veteran soldier, well—we wish that his articulation was more distinct.—Master Mestayer gave us a very interesting Page; if he could walk a little more gracefully, he would appear better—we should like to see Mrs Barrett in this character—but we are expending all our breath on the performers without saying anything about the play itself. To be short, then, we think Bianca Visconti the best American tragedy that has been written. Many, we know, will start at this, and say that it is overwrought—that it is too unnatural for a sister, under any circumstances, to stab her brother through all her love, &c. &c., but without stopping to argue these points, and admitting that it has palpable defects, we think it the best American tragedy that has been written, and will, ere long, if honestly judged, be so generally acknowledged: the plot is original, ingenious, interesting, and well developed—the language, by turns, is bold, impressive, soft and energetic, and studded with poetical gems of the richest hue, while the whole "business" of the piece, (to speak theatrically,) from the beginning to the denouement, is in admirable keeping with its character and design. Mr Willis has added to his own fame and to that of his country by its production, and we rejoice in its full and perfect success, as evidence of the sensibility of Americans to the literary and intellectual merits of their brethren, and their disposition to foster and encourage them in their commendable competition for fame, with the masters of the old world.

Mr Barry "brought out" this play under every advantage of stage effect it was possible to afford it, and has, throughout its preparation for the public eye, spared no exertion to ensure it as favorable an introduction to the audience as possible. The new scenes—the Camp before Milan—the Bronze Hall and Rotunda—the Interior and Exterior of a Ball Room, brilliantly illuminated, and a new Street in Milan—were all beautifully painted, and contributed very considerably to the success of the tragedy. Mr Stockwell improves with every dip of his brush.

Merchants' Bank, Providence.—In the investigation of the affairs of this Bank before the Supreme Judicial Court of Rhode Island, last week, it was shown by the party that applied for an injunction, that the indebtedness of the bank surpassed the amount of its capital stock paid in, contrary to law, and, likewise, that the issue of bills by the bank had been extended, contrary to the advice of the commissioners, until its circulation, in proportion to its specie on hand, was about eleven to one! The Providence Herald states that at the time of the general suspension, in May last, this bank had a circulation of only about $10,000, and specie to the amount of $30,000—through all the worst of the pressure its circulation was kept down—about the middle of July, it was down to $9000. But, on visiting the bank on the 15th of August, the commissioners found that the issues had increased to $156,000 in four weeks, while the specie on hand had actually diminished. The commissioners, though they did not charge the bank with any attempt at fraud, considered the precedent a dangerous one, which, if allowed, would probably lead all the other banks in the State to follow it, and finally reduce the bank paper to a standard of utter worthlessness.

"Gus. Melzar says that it is of no use for fellers to flock round his girl so, for she has promised not to say a word to any one of the masculine gender, but himself. Gus. lives at the 'West end.'"

A long communication, signed "Gus. Melzar," was sent to our office, one day last week, written in a humorous, and, apparently, perfectly inoffensive style, of which the above was the purport. We supposed it to be nothing more than an innocent and playful piece of composition, indited to while away a leisure hour, and that the signature was, of course, as original as any other portion of the manuscript. We have since been convinced, however, to our very deep regret and mortification, that it came from some mean, cowardly, low-lived rascal, who has practiced this deception upon us to gratify a malignant desire to injure the feelings of an honorable and highly respectable young man, whose name is Gustavus Melzar. A reward of FIFTY DOLLARS will be paid to any one who will enable us to ascertain, positively, the villain's name who sent us the communication in question.

We observe a neutral paper hinting to the whigs that it would be more commendable in them to bestow their spare cash towards feeding and clothing the destitute, of whom they talk so much, instead of wasting it in the idle business of firing salutes for pretended victories. Hold on, Mr Editor—your suggestion clashes with the beautiful whig policy of "making the rich richer, and the poor poorer."

A Mr Warner, of New York, has recovered $500 from the Providence and Hartford Stage Company, as damages for being overturned last winter.

The steamer Dubuque, which recently burst her boiler, at the cost of about 30 lives, has since struck a snag and sunk—no lives lost.

Many of the drug stores of New Orleans have been engaged by the city authorities to supply medicines to the poor, gratis.

Accusation of Murder, by Mal-practice, against a Physician at Lowell.—The Lowell papers for the last few days have been filled with reports of the preliminary examination of witnesses for and against Dr William Graves, charged with causing the death of Mrs Mary Ann Wilson, a pregnant widow, by procuring an abortion of her child. The principal facts, as we learn from the Lowell Advertiser, are as follows:—

For the Government, it was proved,—that in the months of May and June, Mrs Wilson applied to Dr Burt to relieve her of her difficulty, at the time attributing the paternity of the child to one Isaac Pollard, with whom she had kept company during the last two years of her widowhood. Dr Burt declined prescribing for her, and advised her not to resort to medicine in her then situation. She replied, that she had good authority for knowing that she could get the required operation performed in Lowell, and had already received a box of pills in aid of it from that place, and had taken some of them.

On the 4th of August, Mrs Wilson left her home at Greenfield, N. H. for Lowell, and took up her residence in the house of Dr Graves, in Hord street.

In July, Dr Graves told Dr Dickey, a former student of his, that if he wished to take a case of abortion, he could get him one, but the proposition was rejected. On the 19th of August, Dr Hickey, who was a boarder at Dr Graves', pressed himself upon Mrs Wilson's confidence, and she disclosed to him her situation and intentions. He told her that the vengeance of a just God would rest on all who caused an abortion.

On the 24th of August, Dr Graves hired Jacob Jenness to bring a coffin to his house privately in the evening.—By the Doctor's directions the corpse was that night carried by Jenness and Veasey Graves to Holt's tavern, in Merrimack, where it was delivered to Isaac Pollard.—Jenness gave a receipt for Ten Dollars to Pollard, but signed it Foss, in order that he might not be known in the transaction. Pollard took the corpse to Greenfield. Before that he had called at Mrs Wilson's home, in company with a person under the assumed name of Dana—(Elisha Fuller, Esq. of Lowell,)—who communicated her death to the family. A stranger, who afterwards proved to be young Dr Graves, was also one of the party. Pollard took out of his pocket the following memorandum, saying that it would tell all about Mrs W.'s death:—

"Mrs Mary Wilson died at the Rail Road House, Boston, August 22d, early in the morning. She said she was from Greenfield, N. H. There sick two or three weeks."

In addition to this, Dana—(E. Fuller)—said Mrs Wilson died of Cholera Morbus. In her trunk was found the following card—"Dr Graves, 7 Hurd street, Lowell;" but when the friends of the deceased began to suspect something wrong, and called upon Dr Graves, he affected the most absolute ignorance, and Pollard absconded. A post mortem examination was held, and the physicians were of opinion that abortion was the cause of her death; but nothing was elicited as to the cause of the abortion.

For the Defence, it was proved, that on the evening when Mrs Wilson arrived at Dr Graves she suffered great pain, and that the Doctor administered paregoric to her. The witness, Mrs Sanborn, also assisted her with warm external applications to her abdomen, which partially relieved her. She continued ailing, and on the night of the 21st aborted, and died on the morning of the 23d. Before dying she enjoined the strictest secresy on the witness and on Dr Graves, as to the place and cause of her death.

Elisha Fuller (alias Dana) testified that he was called upon by Dr Graves to advise respecting the most effectual way of fulfilling Mrs Wilson's injunctions of secresy. After much urging, Mr Fuller consented to go to Greenfield with Veasey Graves, to inform Pollard of Mrs W.'s death, and the paper stating that she died at Boston, was given at Pollard's request. This was on the 24th.

It was the opinion of the Court, that there was a sufficient weight of evidence and unexplained circumstances to render it necessary to hold Dr Graves to answer to a higher court. In the mean time, the Doctor stands committed till it can be ascertained whether the offence supposed to have been committed be bailable or not.

A farmer in Barnstable has raised three hundred bushels of onions from a quarter of an acre of land. For the edification of such young ladies and gentlemen as are admirers of this sort of perfumery, we add, those onions have all been shipped for this city.

☞ Travellers on the Sound will take notice that the boats of the railroad line are about to commence their winter arrangements. The Rhode Island will leave Providence to-morrow (Tuesday) at 3 o'clock, P. M., and the cars to meet the boat will leave here at 12 o'clock, noon, intead of 1, as heretofore.

Bank Dividends.—The Washington, Tremont, and Shawmut Banks, will pay a semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent. to-day, on their capital stock—the Union, South, and Massachusetts, 2 1-2—the Atlas, Commercial, Franklin, Fulton, Lafayette, and Oriental, nothing, and all the rest 3 per centum.

New Orleans.—The Picayune of the 22d states that it is generally conceded that the sickness in the city has diminished. New cases are of such a character as yield readily to medicine—interments fewer—weather more favorable to health, &c.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, Thursday, Sept. 27.—Mr Swift presented a memorial from Vermont remonstrating against the admission of Texas into the Union.

On motion of Mr Calhoun the 47th rule was so altered as to admit Judges of Law and Equity to the floor.

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of the Bill imposing additional duties, as depositories, in certain cases, on public officers.

Mr Webster occupied the floor in opposition to the bill. He eulogised the former United States Banks, and contended that they exercised a salutary influence over the currency of the country. Mr W. was followed by Mr Hubbard, in support of the bill.

In the House, Mr Sherrod Williams offered again his Resolution declaring that it is expedient to establish a National Bank, under certain restrictions, and it was received, and ordered to be printed.

Mr Ogden Hoffman presented a memorial from 3,355 citizens of New York, praying Congress to establish a specie paying National Bank; laid on the table. A great number of memorials against the annexation of Texas were presented. Mr Adams gave notice of his intention to offer a resolution calling upon the Treasury to report at the commencement of the next session, the number of slaves exported from, and imported into the several ports of the United States during the last two years,—distinguishing between the two years.

The report of the committee in reference to the Mississippi election was then resumed, the question being on the amendment, declaring that Messrs Gholson and Claiborne are not duly elected, &c. Mr Harlan spoke at great length in support of the amendment. No decision was had.

The bill relating to the postponement of Deposites was then taken up and discussed without a decision.

In the Senate, Friday, Sept. 29.—Sundry memorials against the admission of Texas were presented by Mr McKean.

Fees for Renewing Bonds.—Mr Webster submitted a resolution directing an inquiry into the amount of fees charged by District Attornies on the renewal of merchants' bonds.

He stated that he had been induced to do so, in consequence of complaints which had come to him from New York, of the exorbitant fees which had been charged in some cases.

Mr King, of Alabama, said that he also had received information, which led him to believe that an investigation of the subject was loudly called for.

The resolution was, on motion of Mr Webster, committed to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Sub Treasury System.—The Senate proceeded to consider the Bill imposing additional duties as depositaries in certain cases, on public officers.

Mr Buchanan then spoke at length in favor of the Bill.

In the House, the principal proceedings were in reference to the Mississippi elections, and the Deposite Bill. [See Correspondent's Letter.]

Fatal Accident.—A dreadful accident, attended with loss of life, occurred yesterday on Mount Joy, during the firing of the federal salute. While the gunner—a man named Richardson, about 20 years of age, an apprentice to Mr Harris C. Barnes, was ramming home the second cartridge, either from the gun not being properly spunged, or thumbed, the powder ignited. The explosion mangled Mr R most shockingly,—mangled his right arm so that amputation above the elbow was necessary—the flesh was stripped from his left arm—and a part of his neck and windpipe carried away. Medical aid was immediately called, and everything done that could be, to save the sufferer's life—all, however, was in vain, and he expired at 10 o'clock last evening, a victim to a foolish and reprehensible method of testifying joy. He was, we understand, a very correct and worthy man, and is deeply mourned by those who knew him.

Mr Thomas F. Roberts, boat builder, had his face badly burned, and was otherwise injured, by the same accident.—Eastern Argus.

Hancock and Washington—When, through divisions in the democratic party, a federal representative to Congress was elected in Hancock and Washington, the federal papers insisted upon it that the event was to be attributed to a radical change of opinion. We disputed the fact at the time, and told those who asserted it that the Gubernatorial election would prove that our position was correct. The election has proved that we were right—the district which elected Mr Noyes to Congress gave a majority of about FIVE HUNDRED for PARKS, and is as thoroughly democratic as any other in the State.—Eastern Argus.

SAMUEL S. GREEN.

SALT WATER BATHS.—The subscriber respectfully informs his friends and the public in general, that he has opened the Bath House on Craigie's Bridge, for [illegible] bathing, and will continue open every day in the week during the season. AUGUSTUS GRANT.
m1

IMPROVEMENT ON DENTAL SURGERY.

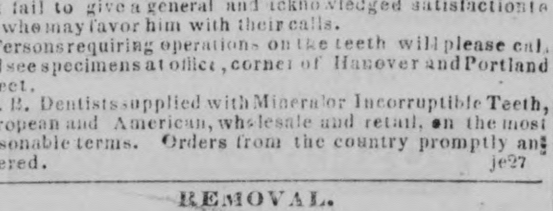

Dr B. T. PRESCOTT continues to perform all the necessary operations on the Teeth, both for their beauty and preservation. Dr P. having obtained the latest and highly approved method of inserting the mineral or incorruptible Teeth on gold plate, so recently introduced in Paris, feels assured that he can not fail to give a general and acknowledged satisfaction to all who may favor him with their calls.

Persons requiring operations on the teeth will please call and see specimens at office, corner of Hanover and Portland street.

N. B. Dentists supplied with Mineral or Incorruptible Teeth, European and American, wholesale and retail, on the most reasonable terms. Orders from the country promptly answered. je27

REMOVAL.

INCORRUPTIBLE PORCELAIN TEETH.—The subscriber returns his sincere thanks to the citizens of Boston for the liberal patronage he has received from them during the last year—he has now removed his office to a more central situation, and owing to the great number of teeth inserted by him daily, he is enabled to reduce his terms at least 50 per cent on all operations from this date. The average price for the best Porcelain Teeth will be, on gold plate $3, pivot $1 to 1 50, filling and cleaning 75 cents to $1, and all operations warranted for the term of five years. He will continue to visit persons at their residence and complete any operations in two visits half an hour each. He has within the last three years instructed several Dentists in this city, who are now practising with great success.

CHARLES J. HOUPT, No 11 Winter street.

N. B. A complete set of 24 teeth to masticate with ease, for a person that has no teeth, will be ready for inspection in one month, and one hundred dollars will be paid on presentation for a better specimen of workmanship. jan19

DISSOLUTION OF COPARTNERSHIP.—The copartnership hitherto existing under the firm of TABER & SMITH, is this day dissolved by mutual consent; J. Taber is authorised to settle the affairs of the late firm, and all persons indebted to Messrs Taber & Smith are requested to call at No 76 Washington street, and settle, that the books of the firm may be closed.

JOB TABER,
AMASA G. SMITH.
Boston, July 19, 1837.

NOTICE.—The subscriber will continue in business at the stand of the late firm of Taber & Smith, No 76 Washington street, and solicits a continuance of public patronage; he will keep constantly on hand a good assortment of Carpetings, Rugs, Painted Floor Cloths, &c.
jy 19 JOB TABER.

ALBANY AND TROY PACKETS.—REGULAR LINE.

Schooner VISSCHER, Owen Bearse, master.
" GRECIAN, A. Watson, "
" BENJ. BIGELOW, F. Wells, "
" VICTOR, Josha Cammett, "
" DEBORAH, D. A. Allen, "
" STRANGER, Nelson Bearse, "
" NIAGARA, Andrew Lovell, "
" ALBANY, Edwin Scudder, "
These vessels are all of the first class, with experienced masters, who are likewise first rate pilots.
The owners of this line, to avoid detention by head winds and shoal water, in the narrow and shoal part of the river near Albany, have purchased (to be used by this line) the Steam Boat "WADSWORTH," as a tow boat and lighter, which, with the lighter Grampus, of ninety tons, built the last season expressly for this line, they think will prevent the delay hitherto experienced at that place, and insure punctuality and dispatch. Merchandise by this line, destined to places on the northern, western or Ohio Canals, northern and western Lakes, &c. &c. &c. will be forwarded by the Agents without delay.
These packets will sail regularly on Wednesday and Saturday of each week, from opposite No 15 Long whf, north side, Boston, and from the piers at Albany and Troy.
The patronage of the public is respectfully solicited.
